

Introduction to Whole-Body Donation

UTN
UNITED TISSUE NETWORK

What Is Whole-Body Donation?

- ▶ Whole-body donation allows for an individual to donate their body to science at end-of-life for medical advancements.

- ▶ There is no substitute for human tissue when studying the body. Medical professionals are reliant on generous donors.

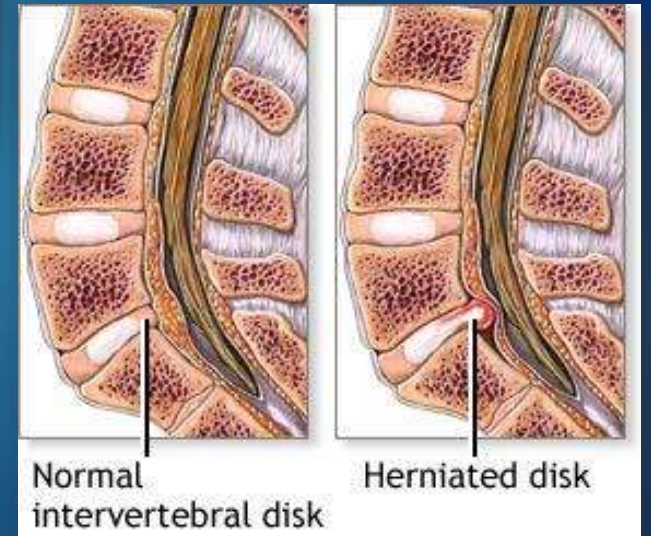

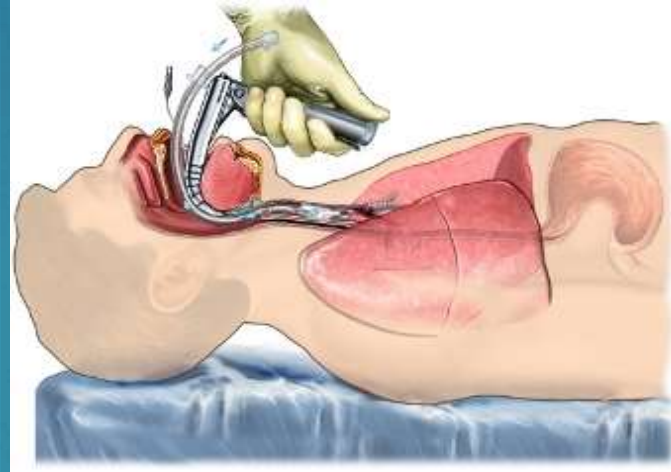

Medical Professionals Who Utilize Non-Transplant Tissue to Learn and Perfect Their Skills

- Physicians
- Surgeons
- Paramedics
- Biomedical Scientists
- Anatomy Students
- Nurses
- Dentists
- Massage Therapists

Medical Training, Education and Advancements

- ▶ Rotator Cuff Surgery
- ▶ Knee Replacement Surgery
- ▶ Tracheal Intubation
- ▶ Microbiology
- ▶ Hip Replacement Surgery
- ▶ Lumbar Herniated Spinal Disk Surgery
- ▶ And more

One donation supports patient outcomes and change the lives of tomorrow.

How does this work with organ donation?

If the donor wishes to be both an organ and whole-body donor, the organs and tissue that are viable for transplant will take first priority. What is not viable for transplant will be utilized by UTN for non-transplant training.

Yes, one can be BOTH an organ and whole-body donor.
